"I'm a sergeant of Russian army. I stumbled upon this video for the first time just before I was assigned for long-range patrols. It was a cold winter My night patrols were tough - snow cold weather, lack of sleep. I was alone. I just had a rifle, a couple of magazines and cigarettes. And, to be honest, sometimes I was scared Noone would want to go alone to patrol a shooting range, that's surrounded by the forest full of wolves.

However, the nights were beautiful. I could see many stars. And I don't know why, but this song got stuck in my head somehow. It kept me awake. It warmed my heart and maybe because of that, it kept me alive. You don't want to become a food for a beast just because you fell asleep.

And now, I stumble upon this video again two years later. That brought back feelings from the past. And I want to say - thank you, friend."
